Zebra mussels found in Trent-Severn lakes

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

In what's being called a "nightmare" by conservationists, zebra mussels are beginning to show up in Ontario's inland waters.

The tiny molluscs were first introduced in the Great Lakes by a European ship in the 1986 and, in the last five years, their population has exploded causing problems for industrial and municipal water intake pipes and altering ecosystems.

Last week, the Ministry of Natural Resources confirmed that small numbers of the mussels have recently been discovered in lakes along the Trent Severn Waterway, including Balsam, Rice, Big Bald Lakes and Lake Simcoe.

These lakes are links along the Trent system, one of the most widely used recreational boating corridors in the province.

The discovery of the mussels raised the possibility that lakes in Haliburton County, which act as feeders to the Trent system, may be prone to invasion by the molluscs.

Earlier this fall the Ministry of Environment research centre in Dorset prepared a study on the potential spread of Zebra mussels throughout Ontario's lakes.

Ministry researcher Keith Summers says trying to predict where zebra mussels are going to spread is a difficult task because there is so little data on the creatures and they have been in Ontario only a short time.

In preparing the study, ministry researcher Bernie Neary used European research material which suggests that zebra mussels thrive in lakes with high pH and calcium concentrations (pH is used to measure acidity, the lower the pH of a lake the more susceptible it is to acidification).

Using information which had been used to study the effect of acid rain on the province's lakes, Neary was able to identify those regions

Chamber ready for hurdles

New president says fiscal strategy is a priority

by Susan Grober

The Chamber of Commerce board of directors is ready to overcome the many hurdles which lay ahead in the new year, says the president of the board's recently-elected executive committee.

On Tuesday night in Haliburton, the Chamber's new board of directors voted in its executive committee, made up of: president Rhonda Elstone, vice-president John Beachli, secretary Dennis Casey, treasurer Ann Martino, and past-president Lyn Stevens.

Elstone says it's too early at this point to predict what directions the Chamber will take in the future. "We have a new board, and it's up to the board to decide."

However, faced with budget cuts and recessionary times, the board will have to face many challenges in order to maintain its role in marketing the county.

"The main hurdle is financial at this point," says Elstone. "Somehow or other we have to come up with strategies to develop resources to run the Chamber. Because if we don't have the dollars, there isn't much we can do."

When county council passed its budget in March, its contribution to the Chamber was cut by more than half, from $70,000 in 1990, to $32,700.

At the end of August, the Chamber board of directors announced that a lack of money would force it to suspend day-to-day operations at the office. So the county provided an additional $8,000, and two individual municipalities pitched-in, with Dysart providing $5,000, and Stanhope $2,500.

Minden appealing severance granted for back lot

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Minden council is appealing a decision by the county's land division committee to approve a severance on a back lot.

The municipality's planning committee had turned down the severance request because it would have created a back lot, which contravenes Minden's official plan.

Back lots are lots which are within 1000 feet of lakes but do not have frontage on the water. They are forbidden in the official plan in order to prevent a second tier of residences from being developed around a lake, which would increase the risk of lake pollution from septic tanks and runoff.

Although severances are granted by the municipality, the land division committee is the final local authority and has the right to overturn a municipal decision.

In this case the committee decided the severance complied with Minden's zoning by-law and official plan and granted the severance against the municipality's recommendation.

Minden council has decided to appeal the decision to the Ontario Municipal Board.

Last month council decided to apply to the province to have the final authority to grant severances given to the municipality, as opposed to the county's land division committee.

New Chamber directors wil face many challenges in the future

To manage the Chamber's finances will be a daunting task for board members, says Elstone.

"It's not going to be an easy job. Whether it means raising money through our membership, or through some sort of agreement with the county for fee-for-service marketing."

Elstone says the board will look into making a new arrangement for providing the county with marketing services.

Many think of the county's contribution to the Chamber as a grant, with no strings attached. In fact, says Elstone, "The agreement over the last several years with the county is that the Chamber would provide marketing for the county on a fee-for-service basis. There are certain things we do on contract for the county. But a lot of people look at it in terms of, the Chamber gets money from the county and does with it what it likes."

Another problem is the downturn in tourism as the result of a poor economy. Elstone says even though many people can't afford to travel now, the push is still on for the Chamber to promote the area.

"It's not going to have a great deal of impact right now, but we have to keep our name up there in people's minds to keep people coming in the future."

People know what places they'd like to visit when they can afford it, and "part of the reason is because of information," says Elstone.

"We have to create an awareness of the highlands of Haliburton, and we can't afford not to do that just because of the recession. We have to look beyond these recessionary times."

Despite the financial setbacks, Elstone finds strength in the great enthusiasm shown by the new board members.

Also, a number of people in the community have offered to help by sitting on committees, she says.

"They may not be able to give up time on the board, but they are willing to sit on committees, and help in other capacities. I think that's encouraging."

Elstone says it seems more people are willing to give their time voluntarily, rather than sit back and wait until they are asked for help. "At our last meeting, many people came up and said, 'If I can help in any way, give me a call.'"

"Tough times seem to bring out the best in people," she says. "Sometime it takes a crisis to get that. And I think it will be a good year, with people willing to help us."

One issue the new board must consider is a possible change in duties of the Chamber, which has a structure very different from those in other areas.

Elstone says the first major difference is the Haliburton County Chamber of Commerce is the only county-wide Chamber in all of Ontario, if not Canada.

"That in itself makes things very difficult, as we're trying to satisfy such a diversified, wide area," she says. "If we're marketing in Minden, Haliburton is not happy, and if we're marketing in Haliburton, Wilberforce is not happy."

"That's a problem, and it's hard to get representation from the county."

The Chamber's mandate is to perform marketing duties, but "other chambers are involved in much more localized, smaller communities," she says. "In Muskoka, there are a number of single-town chambers. In our area, the BIAs tend to act more in the ways that the smaller chambers do."

Those chambers of commerce are more involved in lobbying government issues, such as the environment, education, and labour.

The Ontario Chamber of Commerce has a convention each year, where such issues are discussed, says Elstone. Once resolutions on the issues are passed by the organization, the executive brings the concerns before the provincial cabinet.

"The Ontario Chamber of Commerce is the voice of businesses right across the province, so they do carry quite a bit of clout," says Elstone.

"This is one of the issues that I think the local Chamber is going to have to face — whether to remain a marketing agency, or become involved in local politics, or do both."

"We can not be all things for all people, and must decide what direction to take."

Elstone previously served as president of the executive committee in the early 1980s, and finds there have been many changes since that time.

Still, she says, the new board members all seem ready to roll up their sleeves and dig into the challenges.

"It's not going to be an easy time, but we're going to survive in one way or another."

Along with members of the executive, the board is made up of: Curtis Eastmure, Ann Barker, Derek Lowry, Brian Moore, Dorothy MacKenzie-Payne, Andy Salvatori, Brian Dean and Sharon Lynch.

Politicians and business owners tackle tourism

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Improving Haliburton County's tourism industry is the focus of a major effort being undertaken by local business owners and municipal government officials.

At a meeting held at the PineStone Inn last Tuesday, about 70 people discussed various ways to increase the number of tourists who visit the county.

The meeting was sponsored by the Ministry of Tourism and Recreation and was chaired by Bjorn Nielsen, a recreation consultant with the ministry.

"It went very well. I think all the participants are looking at a variety of ways to entice people to visit the county," Nielsen said in an interview after the meeting.

The participants were divided into small groups and discussed the goals which Haliburton County should be striving to achieve in order to increase tourism.

Curtis Eastmure, a member of the Chamber of Commerce board of directors, was one of the participants at the meeting. He said one of the benefits was the fact that local politicians and business owners sat down together to discuss the issue of tourism.

"I think we have a little better understanding of each other's positions now," said Eastmure. The county and the Chamber have been at odds since county council reduced its contribution to the Chamber budget by more than 50 per cent earlier this year.

Eastmure said participants agreed that an effort should be made to better market the county's existing attractions as opposed to more development of tourist facilities.

Any marketing effort will have to focus on Haliburton County's natural resources and scenic beauty to attract visitors to the area.

At the end of Tuesday's meeting a smaller committee was formed to take the issues and suggestions and work on some specific strategies. Eastmure said there is a good mix of tourist operators and politicians on the committee.

Any effort to market the county will have to go hand-in-hand with negotiations between the county and the Chamber to define responsibilities, said Eastmure. It is expected that the new Chamber board of directors will meet with the new county council to iron out a cooperative marketing strategy and the role each organization will play in the future.

Eastmure says he senses a realization among councillors that the county needs an agency to market Haliburton, and the Chamber is best suited to perform that task.

The recent decision by the PineStone Inn to suspend operations for the winter was also a topic of much discussion at the meeting. And Eastmure said there was the feeling that the 70 participants were at the Last Supper prior to the resort's closure.

Nielsen said the meeting was just the first step in a process to market the county as an entity people can relate to.

One of the possibilities discussed at the meeting was the concept of promoting a system of trails, both on land and water, through which people can discover the county's varied environment.

"It's not enough to tell people that we are here," said Nielsen. "We have to tell them, in specific terms, what Haliburton has to offer that other areas don't have."

Although the ministry sponsored the meeting, and will continue to be involved as ideas are developed, Nielsen said the process will be driven by local people who have the desire to participate and "if anything happens it will be because of the people involved."

Sale of parkland complete

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Minden council has finalized the sale of a portion of parkland to the county which will be used for the new county building.

As one of their final decisions before the new council takes over this week, Minden councillors passed a by-law approving the sale of land to the county at last Thursday's meeting.

During the discussion leading up to the vote, councillor Verne Graham expressed concern about the shape of the lot being sold to the county and the loss of more parkland.

In return for the property, which will be accessed through the arena parking lot, the county paid the nominal price of two dollars and donated $40,000 which Minden must use to develop the park surrounding the property.

In attendance at the meeting were county administrator Gary McKnight and the municipality's lawyer, Stephen Woodcock.

Graham asked if the municipality would have the option of getting the property back if the county does not end up building on it.

Woodcock said Minden would only be given first option to buy the land back from the county if the county seat is moved out of Minden.

Council approved the sale of the land with Graham casting the only dissenting vote.

Later in the meeting Graham again raised the issue of the park's future, in reference to a proposed supportive housing development on Parkside Street.

A year ago, council agreed to sell a three-acre parcel to Staanworth Non-Profit Housing Corporation for the development of a supportive housing complex.

Zebra mussels threaten inland lakes

Conservationists want more money spent on research and control of unpredictable pest which are most likely to experience zebra mussel infestation.

Summers says, from the available information, a majority of lakes in Haliburton County are not likely to see the same invasion of mussels as has happened in the south.

"As you move on to the Canadian Shield, you're getting away from the optimal conditions for the zebra mussels," he says. The same conditions which make lakes in Haliburton County susceptible to damage from acid rain, protect the area from the proliferation of zebra mussels.

There are exceptions however. A large outcrop of limestone in the Eagle Lake area raises the pH level of the Beech River chain and a similar outcrop makes up the entire east shore of Minden's Mountain Lake.

These outcrops provide a more suitable environment for zebra mussels, and Summers says it's possible we could see a pocket of infestation in the lakes effected by the limestone.

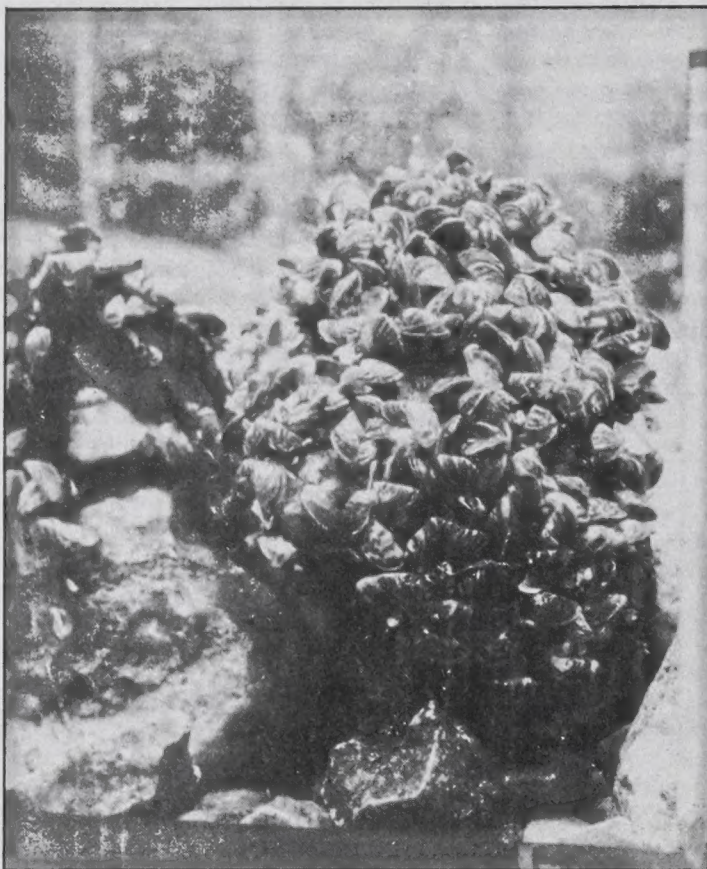

Another factor which accounts for the spread of the mussel is accessibility. Humans provide the main mode of transportation for zebra mussels which attach themselves to the bottom of boats and hitch rides in buckets of baitfish.

Summers says the mussels are beginning to show up in the Trent system because of the large amount of boat traffic which travels through the corridor. Other high-use recreational waterways are also at risk.

"It's a waiting game," he says. "If a body of water can sustain a population of zebra mussels, it's only a matter of time before they get there."

Because zebra mussel infestation is a new phenomenon in Ontario, Summers says the long-term impact is uncertain.

The mussels attach themselves to water intake pipes in large numbers and, in lakes where the population has thrived, they have been responsible for reducing water flows to municipal and industrial plants by as much as 50 per cent. Removal is difficult and costly and there is no guarantee the mussels won't return.

Although each zebra mussel is only the size of a thumbnail, their colonies can number in the hundreds of thousands, threatening the food supplies and spawning shoal of other species and clogging water intake pipes.

The biological impact of the mussels is far less certain. The mussels consume plankton which is a major source of food for many fish stocks and they also colonize along spawning shoals, threatening the reproductive cycle.

Recent surveys have shown that areas in lake Erie which used to support significant walleye spawning areas have been taken over by mussels, with no indication of walleye reproduction.

Considering the impact the mussels have had on large bodies of water like Lake Erie, Summers says it's conceivable that there will be a drastic impact on inland lakes.

"Inland lakes like Rice Lake may see an incredible change," he says. "My best guess is, they will have a major impact by taking energy out of the food column and transferring to the bottom of the lake."

There is hope that, as ecosystems adjust to the mussel, lakes will adapt the mussel population will level off.

Summer says mussels do extremely well for the first five years then "eat themselves out of house and home" and, at the same time, predators become accustomed to the mussels.

Ever since the mussels began appearing in Ontario's lakes, the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters (OFAH) has been lobbying the provincial government to take action against the spread of the animal.

With the discovery of mussels in the Kawartha lakes, OFAH has renewed its efforts to force a government response.

"We have really feared the effects on the Great Lakes, but inland waters don't have the same absorptive powers as large bodies of water," said Dr. Terry Quinney, OFAH provincial coordinator of fish and wildlife services. "As far as we know, certain fish species in the Kawarthas could be devastated."

"If fish species are disrupted, countless other kinds of wildlife, insects and plants will be effected," Quinney also warns that thousands of residents pump water from the inland lakes where the molluscs have been discovered and their intake lines will inevitably become clogged with mussels.

While admitting it is impossible to eradicate the mussels, Quinney says government intervention can slow the spread long enough to allow nature's checks and balances to deal with them. "In Europe, the natural environment evolved with the zebra mussels over a period of many centuries," he says. "In Ontario, the government expects nature to deal with them in a few years."

The provincial government has established an annual $2.1 million budget to battle zebra mussels, but Quinney says many more resources must be committed for research and control.

As a researcher, Summers says "one of the hassles" of dealing with such a new threat is the difficulty in getting money for research.

Without the necessary data base, the future of the zebra mussel will continue to be unpredictable, says Summers. Although water chemistry does have an effect on where the mussel can spread, it possible that the zebra mussel will be able to adapt to new surroundings.

They have already demonstrated an ability to change. Historically a salt-water animal they've adapted to fresh water. Given their genetic diversity, Summers says it's possible that zebra mussels could change from hard to soft water. "They are virtually unpredictable," he says. "Mother nature always has the last at bat."

Canada's future topic of meeting Residents discuss constitution with MPP

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Canada should slow down the pace of constitutional reform, Victoria-Haliburton's MPP has been told.

Last Friday, Dennis Drainville hosted a public meeting in Lindsay to discuss the current constitutional negotiations with local residents.

Drainville chairs Ontario's Select Committee on the Constitution, which has spent the last eight months working on the province's position for the current round of talks aimed at reforming the constitution.

About 40 people from across the riding attended the meeting to ask Drainville questions about the progress of negotiations and to state their own opinions on the matter.

Although there were many different political ideologies represented at the meeting, the audience seemed to agree that the nation should slow down the process and stop being so preoccupied with constitutional change.

"Canada has been ripped apart to the point that it will never be the same as it was 10 years ago," said Minden resident Verne Graham. "The constitution has consumed a majority of people's time." He suggested the constitutional reform should be set aside for at least two years, so the national focus can switch to economic recovery.

Rosedale resident Monroe Scott agreed. "One thing that worries me is the pace." He said the country is rushing headlong into restructuring the constitution to meet an arbitrary deadline set by the government of Quebec.

Reading from an essay by Thomas Burger, Scott said Quebec is going to have to make a decision about sovereignty sooner or later and English Canada should not be "wringing its hands" over the issue.

Brad Medd said there are too many issues being dealt with at once. He said the current negotiations should revolve around a dialogue with Quebec and "meeting the essentials to get unity", leaving other reforms to be dealt with at a later date.

Drainville said many people were surprised by the scope of the proposals tabled by the Canadian government earlier this year. Besides dealing with the Quebec issue and the sharing of federal powers with the provinces, the government has also proposed an economic union, property rights and native self government within 10 years.

"It was a big surprise to a lot of people," Drainville said of the federal proposals. "There were issues no one expected." He said the idea of an economic union has drawn a lot of criticism from people across the country, particularly in Quebec and eastern Canada.

But Drainville said the proposals at least serve as a starting point for further discussion, even if people are unwilling to accept them as is.

Native self-government was another issue which drew many comments and opinions.

Many people expressed support for the concept of self-government, although there was some question as to what the term actually means.

Drainville said there are varying opinions on the subject of native self-government, ranging from a local government structure for each native band or tribe, to a wider concept that would almost create a separate native state within Canada.

As land claims are settled, and natives are able to reap the benefits of the resources they control, Drainville says it is hoped that bands will become economically self-sufficient.

Medd said natives should be offered the same rights, and recognition as a distinct society, as Quebec. He said the 10-year deadline for self-government should be moved forward and settlements reached in three years.

In one of the most passionate comments during the meeting, Gordon Yearsley, his voice choked with emotion, said Canadians could learn a lot from the native population.

"I lived with aboriginal people, and I learned what democracy is all about." He said natives know how to operate in a non-partisan manner and put aside their egos to work for the good of the community.

One man, who lives near Oxtongue Lake in Haliburton County, said one of the fatal flaws of the constitutional process is the fact that it creates two classes of citizens by treating natives and non-natives differently. He expressed concerns about the effects of land claims, particularly the claim by the Golden Lake band to a large portion of Algonquin Park.

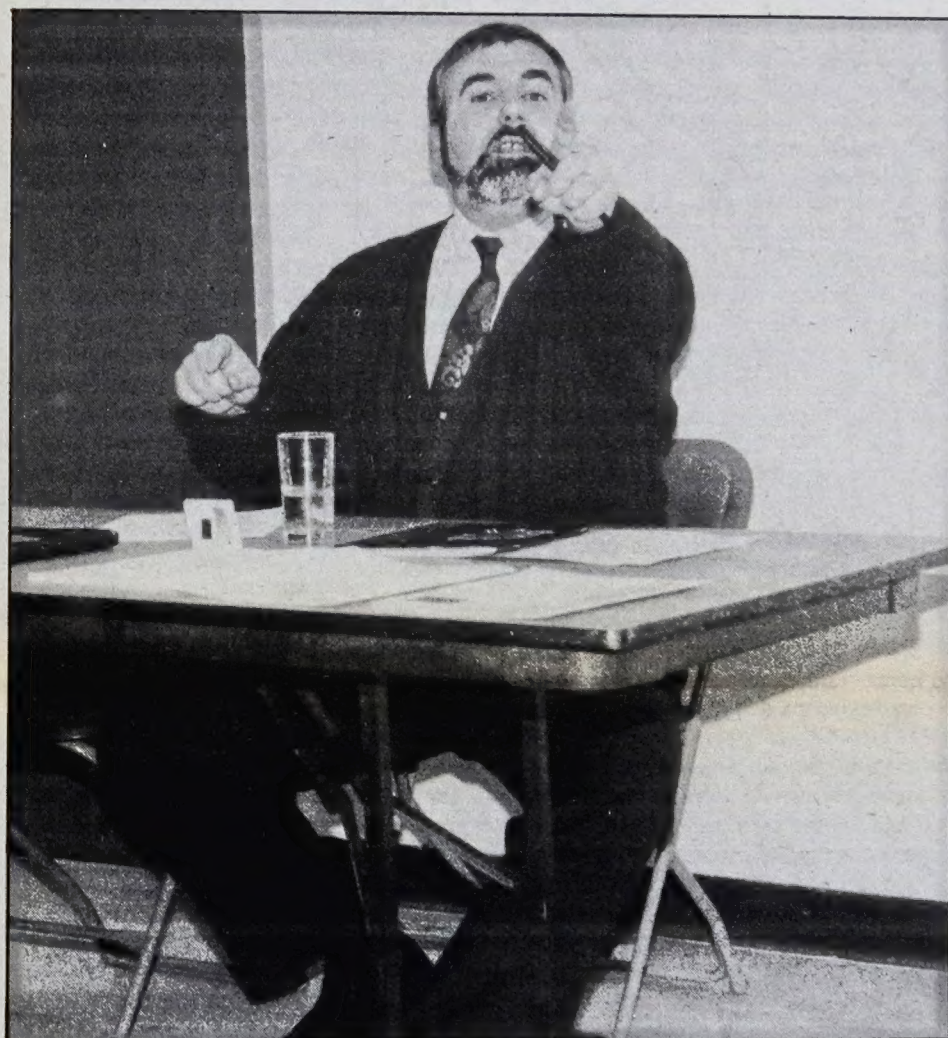

Recognizing Quebec as a distinct society is a controversial issue which has dominated the constitutional debate and was one of the factors in the failure of the Meech Lake Accord in June 1990.

Scott asked Drainville if recognizing Quebec as a distinct society in the constitution would come into conflict with the Charter of Rights and Freedoms, which guarantees individual rights.

Drainville, who said he was speaking for himself and not on behalf of the select committee, said the revised definition of distinct society as outlined in the federal proposals seems to have gained wider acceptance among Canadians than the version contained in the Meech Lake Accord.

"I was one who was skeptical during Meech Lake, but I find this (definition) more easy to accept," he said. "I was born in Quebec and I lived in that society. Quebec is a distinct society. Acknowledging the fact it's a distinct society does not take away anything from any other part of Canada."

While some people in English Canada disa-

Victoria-Haliburton MPP Dennis Drainville fields a question from a member of the audience during last Friday night's public meeting on the constitution. Drainville, who is the chairman of the provincial committee studying the issue, informed the 40 people in attendance about the progress being made on constitutional reform and listened to their comments about the process.

Next week, county council will go through the annual ritual of choosing the one politician who will serve as Warden for the next 12 months.

Although technically the new warden is voted in by his or her fellow councillors, traditionally the event has become more like a coronation and less like an election in Haliburton County.

If there was ever the need to prove the influence back-room dealings have on municipal politics in Haliburton County, the selection of warden fits the bill. Instead of judging potential candidates by the knowledge, energy and political skills they would bring to the office, the criteria is based on which municipality's turn it is to fill the chair.

With so many new councillors coming on board this year, the crop of veteran councillors is slim. When you take into account which municipalities recent wardens have come from, there is only about two or three councillors who are likely to be considered for the position.

Perhaps this would be a good year to discard the old way of doing things and have an open election of warden. During the recent municipal campaign, an over-whelming majority of candidates expressed the belief that the county should be operated in a more open, accountable fashion. It would be nice to see the councillors live up to those laudable ideals by choosing a warden from a selection of candidates, as opposed to merely rubber-stamping someone because he is the next in line for the job.

And while the issue of the warden is on the table, serious thought should be given to expanding the term of office from the current one year to three years, the full term council.

Many politicians will say that it takes at least one year to get accustomed to a new position, so it follows that we never really get the warden we deserve by re-appointing every year.

With the number of weighty issues which the county will be forced to deal with in the next three years, including waste management, market value re-assessment, planning and restructuring, having the same warden for the full term will give the council continuity and a clear direction to follow.

That was quite a dance that Canada's 18th PM led the national press last month - the Mulroney Mazurka, shall we call it? We've seen the man in a variety of elusive guises over the years, but Bashful Virgin was a new one.

He was quite good at it too - blushing and aw-shucksing as rumours swirled about this Gucci loafer that he was/wasn't/about to be picked to head up the United Nations.

Black 'n White

by Arthur Black

It was only a flitting minnow as favourable PR goes, but The Mulroo played it like a bluefin tuna.

And all the time it was going on, I kept whacking myself on the side of the head and asking: "Have I missed something, here?"

This is the same Brian Mulroney who, as a front man for the Iron Ore Company of Canada, arranged to turn Schefferville into a ghost town?

This is the same BM who thanks to his inability to resist the urge to brag ("I had to roll the dice") - manage to single-handedly scuttle his own Meech Lake Accord?

We are talking, are we not, about the man who has managed to alienate the Maritimes, Ontario, the West and the far North? The guy who gave Canada the GST - the most loathed tax in the history of our country? The leader whose gang of bumbling nincompoops has gutted the national rail system, infuriated public employees, alienated small businessmen from the Queen Charlottes to St. John's and left Prairie farmers with virtual Himalayas of near-worthless grain?

So let me see if I've got this Mulroney-for-U.N. things

Burglars found time to steal one last item

Editor:

Do you recall how just a few short weeks ago I wrote to you bemoaning the fact that our small cottage had been entirely fleeced by enterprising thieves? Well we were broken into again - only this time there was nothing left to steal. After all, we had no money to replace what was gone. However, such enterprising thieves managed to find something, our children's alarm clock that we had recently purchased for $11.49 and three Kellogg's box tops. How sick! What kind of a community is this?

Earth Crew Counsellors, past and present, on being nominated for Junior Citizens of the Year. In addition to the Crew Counsellors themselves, Mr. Dave Mowat should be congratulated for his success with the program. His dedication was influential when the program began some seven years ago.

Sunship was a big part of life at HHSS when I was there, and from my brother's reports (he was a counsellor this fall), I can safely say that it still is. When Crew Counsellors return from five days at the Sunship Study Station, they are tired, but they wear rosy cheeks - partially due to their exposure to a ton of fresh air, but mostly because of the satisfaction that they feel inside. It is hard to describe this special satisfaction to someone who hasn't experienced it.

Congratulations again. You guys deserve this honor!

Politics is pretty scarrrrrey stuff

He destroyed a town... then he mugged an entire nation...

And because of that they wanted to put him in charge of the world???

Pretty scarrrey, as Count Floyd would say.

But then, who says that executive competence has anything to do with leadership? Look at Ronald Reagan. His chief claims to fame before he took office consisted of a Colgate smile, a string of General Electric commercials and a credit in the movie Bedtime for Bonzo - in which he played second banana to a chimp.

American voters landslid him into the Oval Office. Twice. As I write, Sonny Bono, who was hitched to Cher before she got famous - is trying to decide whether or not he'll give the American electorate a chance to vote him into the U.S. Senate.

Not that we're Simon Pure on this side of the border. Anyone out there remember Red Kelly? Red was a premier defencemen for the Toronto Maple Leafs back in the years when the Leafs played hockey.

In fact he was such a first-rate defenceman that the Ontario Liberal backroom boys decided he'd make a dandy Member of Parliament. So they ran him.

And the voters elected him. Twice.

A defenceman MP, a Tin Pan Alley senator, an advertising shill for President - why not Brian Mulroney for U.N. Secretary General?

And the vacancy that would leave at 24 Sussex? No problem.

I'm sure Eddie Shack is available.

Louise Craig of Ontario Hydro started the fine paper recycling program used by area businesses. Hydro keeps a box by the photocopier machine for paper to be recycled, and collects about four big bags each month.

Pitch-in for environment with fine paper recycling

Businesses asked to participate in program to cut down on garbage

by Susan Grober

If you feel guilty over all the fine paper you throw out during the course of a work day, then it's time to consider taking part in a recycling program.

Louise Craig had those same guilty feelings when she started working at Minden's Ontario Hydro office earlier this year. When she asked why there was no fine paper recycling, Craig was told she was welcome to start a program.

Now, the project has been underway since July, and enough fine paper has been diverted from area landfills to fill a four cubic yard container six or seven times in the past five months.

But the six-month trial program ends December 31, and Craig wants to ensure it doesn't end.

"I would like to renew our contract, and get more businesses involved," she says.

Businesses taking part in the program include: Ontario Hydro, the Ministry of Natural Resources, the county office, the Haliburton County Board of Education (schools included), and some smaller companies.

The bin is kept outside the Ministry of Natural Resources' Highway 35 office, and program participants are provided with a key to use the bin whenever they need it.

The contract for bin rental and paper pickup is with Garbutt Enterprises, and the company which does the recycling accepts a wide variety of paper products.

"The recycling company in Toronto takes everything except blueprint paper, courier envelopes and food wrapping. But we take just about everything else, including fax paper, telephone books, window envelopes, sticky notes.

Some companies are so strict, they won't even accept coloured or stapled paper, says Craig, adding that everyone who participates gets a list of acceptable and unacceptable items.

The cost of renting the bin and picking up the paper is divided between all participants. To make sure space in the bin is allocated fairly, companies which produce less paper will share a smaller portion of the cost.

At the Hydro office, about four large bags of paper are recycled each month. The schools deposit eight or 10 bags a week.

In contrast, one smaller company throws out one bag a month. "Even that is enough to participate," says Craig.

Under the present program, each company has paid $190 for the six months. "But that figure will change, depending on the number of people involved and the number of pick-ups we need."

If only two or three companies take part in

IGA foodbanks help the hungry

Fewer people will be going hungry this year, thanks to a joint effort between Dollo's IGA, Minden, Scott's IGA, Kinmount and 910 CKLY Radio.

With the recession, area foodbanks expect a much larger than normal call for assistance - hence this special project. In Kinmount, the foodbank is coordinated by the Kinmount Lions Club who have arranged the food pick-ups with Guy Scott of Scott's IGA. In Minden, the coordinator is Captain Robert Howard of the Salvation Army FB in conjunction with David Dollo.

CKLY is donating over 250 commercials to promote the cause of the foodbanks in feeding the area's needy. These public service announcements will direct residents to the IGA stores where specially made food "banks" are now available for public donations. Each week, representatives will collect the food and later distribute it to people in the immediate community, based on greatest need served first.

The CKLY/IGA foodbank is in the stores beginning December 2. Last year the project with CKLY and participating IGA's raised over 2,000 pounds of food.

Paper recycling program worthwhile for businesses, says co-ordinator the new program, the cost for each will be high, she says. "If we can get 10 or 15 companies involved, the cost will go down quite a bit."

Craig doesn't feel the larger companies already involved in the program will drop out in the new year. "Once you start, it's hard to start throwing all your paper into the garbage again," she says.

When Craig originally got fellow employees at Ontario Hydro to start diverting all their fine paper, the pressure was on for her to set-up the program.

"We stored it all in the basement for months, and started running out of space," she says with a laugh.

So she contacted the county's former waste management co-ordinator, Len Munt, who helped launch the program and promote the idea to area businesses.

"It was nice having someone else in-involved," she says. Since then, Munt quit his job and left the county. "Now that Len is gone, it's been put on me to either stop the program, or get more people involved."

Initially, it was a difficult job to get some people interested in the program. "In the beginning, most of the community said just forget it," says Craig.

"A lot of people have a problem with paying for the program, and I think that's because we don't have tipping fees at our dumps. I believe recycling is a lot cheaper than dumping it at the landfills, because we just pay for pick-up and storage."

Some businesses send their one-sided used paper overseas to be used in schools, but Craig says this shouldn't prevent them from taking part. "Many papers are already printed on both sides, or they can't be sent because they are confidential. Shredded paper can also be recycled."

Even some Hydro employees were first reluctant to recycle their fine paper. "People just aren't used to the idea of recycling, and throw waste into the garbage when you're not looking. And some people don't believe it does any good."

Now each desk has a green tray for recyclable fine paper, which is then deposited in a box kept next to the photocopier machine.

Craig would hate to see the program disbanded after all the hard work which went into its inception. "It would be a shame to see the service not available. In Haliburton, they are trying to start cardboard recycling, and they're having a tough time of it. So if we take this away now, we may not have it again."

Anyone interested can contact her at the Hydro office at 286-2031. Although she would like to hear from them as soon as possible, there is no deadline. "People can jump in anytime."

Thank You

Now that my term has been completed as councillor I would like to thank you for the support shown in the past six years.

George Hewitt grew this enormous 15 pound turnip in his garden this spring. The vegetable is more than four times the normal size, and Hewitt says it probably would have continued growing if a deer hadn't eaten the top off it.

Veggie weighs in at 15 lbs

by Susan Grober

George Hewitt is surprised at what turned up in his garden this season — a turnip which grew until it reached 15 pounds.

Hewitt says he planted half a dozen seeds, expecting to grow one or two turnips. And, he says, "this one here took off last spring, and never stopped growing until a deer ate the top of it."

Hewitt has no secrets for growing large turnips. Actually, he hasn't been planting them for very long.

"I don't grow turnips as a rule — a package of seeds usually does me fine," he says.

Although he's tickled that it's at least four times the size of a regular turnip, Hewitt isn't going out of his way to plan recipes for cooking the enormous root vegetable.

In fact, he turns up his nose at turnips.

"I don't like them very well," he says. "I just like a little bit in soup, but that's about all."

Secret pen pals celebrate

by Susan Grober

Despite the stormy weather, a ray of sunshine filled Club 35 last week.

A group of women who call themselves the Sunshine Sisters enjoyed their annual Christmas celebration on Wednesday, with a potluck supper and gift exchange.

The Sunshine Sisters have been around for more than 40 years, originating with the United Church Women of Carnarvon.

"It all started out as a sewing group, but it has grown since then," says member Elinore Kleinschmidt. "At that time they met every week."

The group members are secret pen pals, meeting once a year and picking out names to send cards in honour of their birthdays and anniversaries.

But they don't know who has sent the cards until they exchange names at an end-of-the-year Christmas gathering.

"It was a nice night, and it's always fun to find out who's been writing to you for the past year," says Kleinschmidt.

This year's members proved to be hardy souls, with 27 out of 33 members braving treacherous, slippery roads turn out for the event.

"It was delightful, and the food was just scrumptious," she says.

Each woman brought a gift for her Sunshine Sister. But they weren't allowed to accept the gift before sitting on Santa's lap.

Normally, the party is held at the Zion United Church hall. "But since we had to pay for the church now, we went to Club 35, which was cheaper," Kleinschmidt explains.

Participants donated one dollar each to help pay for the club rental, and a silent auction was held to raise funds so no one will have to pay next year, she says.

New members are always welcome, and whenever woman move into the area they are invited to join.

This year was especially exciting for Kleinschmidt, who was matched up with one of her best friends. "She never guessed it was me," she says.

Trustee wants meeting on accommodation decision

by Susan Grober

The following matters were discussed in brief at last Tuesday's meeting of the Haliburton County Board of Education:

Accommodation

Dorset Trustee John Munro feels a public meeting should be held on the board's recent decision to initiate a $7.65 million accommodation project.

In October, trustees voted to seek $4.75 million to build a new Kindergarten to Grade 6 school, change J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary to a Grade 7 to 9 facility for all students in the county, and to immediately initiate a $2.9 million addition at Archie Stouffer Elementary School.

Munro made a notice of motion in favour of having trustees discuss later this month the possibility of holding a meeting.

Interim reports

Dysart Trustee Tim Casey would like to know why class averages are no longer included on high school students' interim reports.

"I have always enjoyed getting the reports," said Casey.

"And if the class averages are included, it's something that tells you as much about the teachers as it tells you about the students."

Superintendent of Education Dale Robinson explained that student have only been in school a short time when the interim reports are made up, so the marks aren't necessarily an accurate appraisal of their work.

"One bad test can throw the whole mark off," said Robinson. He said this can be misleading, so the marks aren't being averaged until January.

"If the mark is not going to be accurate anyway then there's no reason to send the report," suggested Casey.

Robinson said the interim report is a less formal account of each student's progress.

Policy ignored

All trustees expressed anger that the board is often given short notice to grant permission for certain school projects.

The concerns arose when trustees were asked to approve a fundraising project which is already underway at J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School.

Originally, the Grade 3-8 students were going to sell pens in April, but this has been postponed and combined with a project to sell calendars this fall.

Because of problems in the past, when trustees were forced to immediately vote on field trips and fundraising projects because of time considerations, the board passed a policy asking schools to submit such requests within a reasonable time to allow discussion on the matters.

However, this policy has been ignored on numerous occasions.

So trustees are getting fed up and want the guideline strictly upheld.

"I appreciate your comments, and we'll do our utmost to ensure this type of thing doesn't happen again," Director of Education Brad Saunders told trustees.

In the meantime, trustees approved the J. Douglas Hodgson fundraising activities of pen and calendar sales, as well as hot dog and donut days.

Children's Aid budget increases 20 per cent, cuts still necessary

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The local Children's Aid Society has received an early Christmas present from the provincial government.

Last week the Kawartha-Haliburton Children's Aid Society learned that the social services ministry has agreed to increase the operating budget by 20 per cent for 1992.

The society has been dealing with a financial crisis and deficit budgets since 1986. The situation became so critical last year that, at one point, the society's board of directors threatened to resign and turn the operation over to the province.

This year alone, the society spent $1.7 million more than its approved operating budget.

The problems arose because the ministry and the society could not agree on how much the agency should be spending. Although the province repeatedly cleared the society's accumulated deficit, it would not increase the annual budget enough to cover costs.

Earlier this year, the ministry and the CAS agreed to have a third party come in and examine the budget situation in an attempt to resolve the impasse.

Barry Dalby was brought in to look at the history of the CAS and its expenditures. Starting at 1986, the last year the ministry and agency agreed on the amount of the approved budget, Dalby studied the amount allotted to the agency and the amount that was actually spent.

Bob Penny, executive director of the CAS, says Dalby's report has identified a number of issues which will have to be dealt with by both the ministry and the society.

"In the end, the ministry said they believed the base operating budget was not high enough and has committed to increasing it by 20 per cent next year," said Penny. "It's a very positive thing. It gets pretty heavy carrying around a $1.7 million in your back pocket."

Despite the increase, Penny says the society will still have to cut funding by about $300,000 in order to live within its budget.

This year, the ministry approved a budget of almost $6 million. Next year, the base budget will be increased to $7.2 million, but this year the agency spent $7.6 million.

"Next year we'll have to find ways of cutting $300,000 out of the budget," said Penny. "No one is excited about having to cut money, but we realize that we have to do our share of trimming in these economic times."

The board of directors will begin the process of deciding where those cuts will be made this month.

There have been concerns among Haliburton County's politicians that those cuts might include a reduction in the society's service to the county.

Currently a study is underway in Haliburton County to look at the possibility of amalgamating those children's services which are funded by the social services ministry, with includes the CAS.

At the last meeting of county council, Monmouth reeve Keith Tallman, who is the county's representative to the Children's Aid Society, said it's possible that the agency will not want to make any long-term commitments until the results of the amalgamation study is known.

But Penny says the society has made no decisions about service in Haliburton County and he hopes the study will have not effect on the agency's operations in the county.

The lease on the CAS office in Haliburton Village expires this year and Penny says the board will have to consider different options before finding a new location.

"We have to carefully examine whether we should be establishing a more visible presence in Minden," he said. "Right now everything is centred in Haliburton (Village) and we have to look at that."

He said the society might be able to share a facility in Minden with some other social agencies. "We don't want to leap into any long-term commitments without looking at other options," he said.

Graham questions sale

Staanworth did not get government approval to proceed with the project in 1992 and the offer to purchase the park land expired last weekend.

Graham, who was not on council when the agreement with Staانworth was reached, cautioned the municipality against selling off the park.

"All of the parkland around the arena was donated by Leslie Prentice," he said. "If he wanted to develop it, he would have developed it on his own."

Graham said the municipality has agreed to sell four parcels and the park is being diminished "bit by bit."

"I really wonder when it will end," he said. "If it continues I will feel obliged to take up a petition to have the sale of park land stopped."

He also warned that continued development in the park will threaten the village's water supply.

Reeve Bern Berry said council agreed to sell part of the park to the county in order to keep the county seat in the village of Minden, as opposed to having the new building located on the Allsaw Flats as was originally planned.

"It will be the decision of the next council to sell or not to sell," Berry said of the Staانworth proposal. "That's the way of the world."

Tell her again why it's "ok" that daddy's not paying his family support.

A lot of fathers* in Ontario who are supposed to be paying family support, aren't. And it's time we got mad about it. Because they're hurting their kids — our kids — and they're hurting you and me.

It's not "ok" that over 80,000 kids are going without more than $400 million in support payments.

It's not "ok" that three-quarters of all family support isn't being paid the way it should be.

It's not "ok" that over $140 million of our tax dollars have gone to families who were forced to turn to social assistance because their support payments were not being made.

The Ontario Government's new Family Support Plan will introduce automatic wage deduction of support payments, and specify to whom and when they apply.

Trustees concerned about in-school advertising

by Susan Grober

A Haliburton County Board of Education trustee is concerned that commercial advertising is allowed on school PA systems.

At last Tuesday's meeting, Tim Casey said he feels the board previously passed a motion against allowing advertising on the public address systems, and he assumed the schools would be notified.

However, Sir Sam's Inn continues to advertise over the high school system, he said.

Casey asked if there is a breakdown in communications between the board and the schools, adding that high school principal Peter Forgrave "had no idea there was a problem at the board level, and that this was being done."

Mary Anne Wilson agreed that the board decided against the advertisements, and said they are being broadcast in other schools as well as the high school.

"I'd like to see that information go out again, if it didn't reach the principals," said Wilson.

Len Salvatori didn't recall that a resolution was ever passed. "I feel people were for and against it," he said.

Superintendent of Education said the matter was discussed by previous director Stuart Baker at a meeting of the principals, but that Forgrave wasn't present.

"I'm not sure if there was a resolution," said Robinson, "but the matter was discussed."

Wayne Wood suggested that a memorandum be drawn up and sent to the principals.

But Robinson said it was a rather sticky situation, as a number of community organizations such as minor hockey, scouts, and cadets also advertise in the schools.

"Is it okay to advertise on the school bulletin boards, and not over the PA?" he asked.

Wilson said she feels there is a significant difference between allowing commercial and non-profit ads in the schools.

Chairman Cheryl Murdoch noted it could be difficult to make changes now that the school year is already underway. "The problem is, now you can close the barn door, but the horse is out," she said.

Trustees decided to follow Murdoch's suggestion of sending the matter to the board's education committee for further discussion.

Robinson will check if a resolution was passed.

Restrictions placed on bible hand-out

by Susan Grober

Provincial guidelines regarding religious education will restrict the way Gideon bibles will be made available to local elementary school students.

At last Tuesday's meeting, the Haliburton County Board of Education discussed a request from the Gideon Society to make a presentation and distribute bibles to Grade 5 students.

The bibles have been distributed in previous years.

However, there have been changes to Ministry of Education regulations, ever since an Ontario Court of Appeal ruling in 1990 stated religious instruction to indoctrinate students in the Christian faith violates the Charter of Rights and Freedoms.

The board granted the Gideons permission to have a representative visit the classrooms of Grade 5 students in J. Douglas Hodgson, Archie Stouffer, and Cardiff elementary schools.

But in keeping with the regulations, the representative must be accompanied by the principal, and the presentation will have more limitations than in the past.

Although the students may be informed of the Gideons' work, "You may not preach to the students in any way nor hold prayer with them," Robinson wrote in a letter to a local member of the Gideon Society.

The representative is expected to leave an amount of bibles so that one is available for each student in the class.

However, Robinson said: "The students must realize as well that they are not compelled to take a Bible but may have one if they wish."

Director of Education Brad Saunders says board staff tried to be as sensitive as possible in handling the matter.

"We want to be sensitive to the Gideons and to the Christian students, as well as others who are not Christian," he said. "We will extend the same courtesy to other religious groups."

"I very much like the way this is being handled," said Mary Anne Wilson.

Pee Wees play in Haliburton tournament, beat Bancroft

The Minden OMHA Pee Wees travelled up Highway 121 on Friday and Saturday, November 22 and 23 to participate in the Haliburton OMHA Pee Wee Tournament.

They took on the Haliburton Pee Wees on Friday evening in the first game of the tournament, won by Haliburton 1-0.

The lone goal was scored with 50 seconds remaining in the first period by Aaron Galbraith, assisted by Josh Burk and Matt Galbraith. Even though the Minden Pee Wees tried valiantly to score during the game. But lets give Haliburton credit they did check well and really did not allow Minden to many scoring opportunities but the ones they did get, were well handled by the goal tending tandem of Brock Glendinning and Blaze Foster.

In their first game on Saturday, the Minden's opposition was Bancroft and after receiving instruction from the coaching staff concerning their play in Friday's game, the Pee Wees went out and played as a team and won the game 3-0.

Their first goal was scored at 2:34 of the first period by Dennis Woods on a neat pass across the front of the net from Jeff Wray. Then at 9:16 of the third period, Tom Neville scored with a screen shot from the point, unassisted.

Curtis Fielding closed out the scoring with 19 seconds remaining in the game after Bancroft had pulled their goalie.

The team's second game on Saturday was against Peterborough, the eventual winners of the tournament and justifiably the strongest team entered in the tournament. The final score was 4-0 in Peterborough's favour.

Even thous they lost the game, the players made us truly proud of the effort put forth and the manner in which they played.

Hopefully they may have learned a valuable lesson for the future that any game they play should be played as a team as no individual player can win in a team sport without the support and effort of their team mates.

The puck glides over the shoulder of the Lakefield goalie after Mike Billings (wearing number eight) lests fly with a shot. It was the first of two for Billings in the Redmen's 7-2 win over the visiting Lakefield team.

Redmen stomp Lakefield 7-2

A four goal effort in the third period locked up the game for the HHSS Redmen as they defeated Lakefield 7-2 Wednesday evening at the Dysart Arena. Jason Billings led the attack for the Redmen, notching three of the goals, two in the final frame to secure the win.

Lakefield took a strong lead early in the game scoring two quick goals at the 11 minute mark. The goals were just 15 second apart.

The Redmen didn't find the mark until the closing seconds of the first period when Derek Wilson connected on a pass from Kevin Morissette and Mark Morissette.

Billings evened the score at the 8:42 mark of the second period scoring on a pass from Greg Stamp. Before the period ended Jamie Dollo added one more goal to give the Redmen the lead heading into the final frame. Stamp assisted on the marker.

The third period belonged to the Redmen as they were able to contain the Lakefield attack and press their own around the visitor's goal. Mike Billings scored at 13:51 with assists going to the Morissette brothers. Just 40 seconds later Jason Billings found the mark for goal number two. Assisting was Greg Stamp and Jamie Dollo.

Mike Billing notched his second of the evening 24 seconds later with assist going to Johnathon Bishop and Chad Burden. Jason Billings completed his hat-trick at 6:34 with Jamie Dollo and Greg Stamp getting the additional credits. The Lakefield team picked up ten minutes in penalties while the Redmen were assessed 16 minutes.

The Redmen travel to Lindsay tonight for a game against I.E. Weldon. Wednesday, HHSS plays host to Fenelon Falls for a 7:30 p.m. game at the Dysart Arena.

Tykes win against Fenelon

On Saturday, November 23, the Minden Major Tykes travelled to Fenelon Falls for an exhibition game against their Novice "C" team, winning 5-2.

The action in the first period was spent in the Fenelon zone. Minden opened the scoring at 6:06 with a lovely breakaway pass from Stephen Johnson, sending Ben Carpenter for the net. Minden's second goal of the period came shortly after at 5:10 from hard work in the corner. Nicholas Mitchell dug out the puck sending a nice pass to Jamie Colliss.

The second period saw another fast start by Minden with Adam Tomlinson taking a pass at centre ice from Nicholas Mitchell and skating past Fenelon's defence to score. Fenelon's offence got started but were unable to get past the defence and goal tender until 3:27 of the period.

In the third period, Minden opened with an unassisted goal at 8:53 by Nicholas Mitchell, and followed by a goal at 7:03 by Jamie Colliss from Andy Kinsman. Fenelon added another at the 5:00 mark, but that was all they could get.

Excellent effort by all the team members including the boys not on the score sheet, Greg Vanderlip, Graham Neave, Justin Walker, Jordan Campbell and Lance Aggett. Also, another strong game for goal tender, Mark Schell.

The next day Oakwood came to town. The hometown boys got off to a slow start with Oakwood taking the lead in the first at 5:17. Minden's Andy Kinsman tied it up at 4:54 with a nice goal coming from Stephen Johnson. Oakwood tallied two more goals before Minden came alive.

At 3:18 of the second period, Jamie Colliss scored on a great set up from behind the net by Andy Kinsman. Then at 2:39 Adam Tomlinson carried the puck from his own zone for a terrific one man effort past the defence to the game.

The third period saw Oakwood take the lead only 39 seconds into play, but then Minden's goalie Mark Snell shut Oakwoods offence down. Great end to end action with tight checking and defence by the local boys. Finally at 3:14 of the period Andy Kinsman got his second goal of the game coming from Nicolas Mitchell. Minden had a couple more good opportunities to score but could not connect. Final score Oakwood 4 Minden 4.

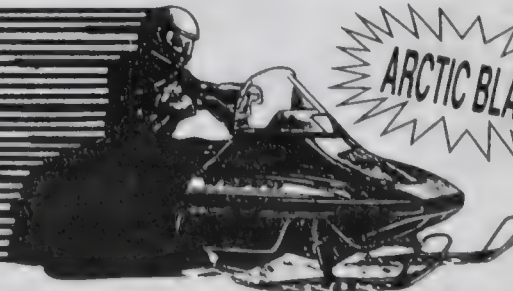

Another good effort by all members, Graham Neave, Jordan Campbell, Justin Walker, Lance Aggett and special mention to Ben Carpenter and Greg Vanderlip who never quit digging even when they're down!

Atoms win 4-3 beat Oakwood

On Saturday, November 23, 1991, Minden O.M.H.A. Atoms hosted Oakwood in the return match of league play. Oakwood previously beat Minden 3-1. Minden started slowly again, with Oakwood leading 1-0 at the end of the first period. Minden exploded with four goals in three minutes and forty-two in the second period.

Minden goal scorers were Ryan Anderson, Philip Daniels, Nick Kulas and Blaine Saunders, with assists going to Chris Nielsen, Nick Kulas and Danny Jordan. The second period ended with Minden leading 4-2. The third period saw Oakwood storm to the attack, with only excellent defensive hockey and strong goaltending by Shane Flood preventing Oakwood from tying the score.

Final score 4-3 in favour of Minden.

Hewitt's scoring spree leads Home to victory

Home Hardware goalie Terry Crowe steers the puck aside after Paul Walker (in white jersey) of Sid Stamp Fuels attempts to score with a shot to the far side of the net. Home won the contest 7-2, lead by Dean Hewitt who scored five goals.

Home hardware just couldn't have done without Dean Hewitt last week. The wiry forward scored five of the team's seven goals Monday evening and assisted on the other two. The stellar performance was part of the opening game in the regular Men's Recreational Hockey League action. Sid Stamp Fuels scored two goals in an effort to keep up with the action, but was unable to turn aside the Hewitt tide.

Dave Rogers and Carey Gilligan scored the other two goals for Home. Rogers was also credited with five assists and Gilligan was given one. Ben Manuge also assisted on two other goals.

Scoring for Stamps was Ted Vasey with a pair. The assists were credited to Doug Schell who figured in both and Larry Sawyer and Andy Campbell with one each. Terry Crowe was in net for Home while Kevin Smith was the Sid Stamp netminder.

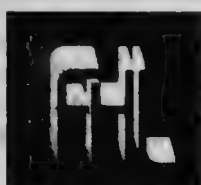

Hartwick Construction blanked Westside Jug City in the second game of the evening. Barry Boice led the charge for Hartwick with two goals with the other three shared by Kevin Hamilton, Jeff Stamp, and an unidentified player. Stamp picked up three assists with Kevin Hamilton and Dave Dollo picking up a pair each.

Rob Crowe earned the shut-out between the pipes for Hartwick while Ron Telford was in net for Westside.

A couple of goals in the closing minutes of the game gave The Times a 6-5 edge over Kountry Double D Catering in the final game of the evening. Scoring honours were shared among six players on The Times team with Derek Moore scoring two and singles notched by Craig Crowe, unassisted, Doug Allison, Ivan Ingram, and Doug Allison, who also picked up two assists. Other assists were credited to Dan Allison, Bern Berry, Irwin Asbell and Jim Crawford. Andrew Burk was in net for The Times.

Scott Hamilton and Tim Hunter scored two goals for Double D. One of Hamilton's markers was unassisted. The other goal came off the stick of Harold Cowen, who also picked up two assists. Other assists went to Hamilton with a pair, Hunter, Corey Walker and Dave Crego with singles. Duane Lennie was between the pipes for Double D.

The action continues tonight with Home taking on Double D at 8 p.m., Stamps playing Hartwick at 9 p.m. and Westside facing off against The Times at 10 p.m. Admission to the games is free.

Unity issue should wait, say residents

gree with any constitutional reference which recognizes Quebec's distinctive nature, there are people in Quebec who feel it does not go far enough. "I feel we have a compromise and that is something to be happy about," said Drainville.

Ontario's select committee just returned from Quebec where Drainville met with representatives of the provincial government. He was asked if people in Quebec really want to separate from the rest of Canada.

"I find middle-aged people and older are less open to separating. Younger people tend to support the sovereignty position," he said. "One thing that is apparent to me is that the government of Quebec is a federalist government."

David St. Jean said he believes Quebec should be recognized as a distinct society and every effort should be made to keep the province in Confederation.

"I get very upset hearing Canadians say 'just let them go'," he said. "We would be culturally diminished, economically diminished and fragmented. If you take Quebec out of Canada, we're not that different from the United States."

During the meeting, Drainville also presented Ontario's proposal for a social charter to be included in the constitution. The charter would guarantee the universal social programs and institutions which Drainville says make up Canada's character.

He said Canadians are concerned about the erosion of the country's social framework and want protection for support programs like health care, education, welfare and unemployment insurance.

"I believe there is a need to safeguard these social institutions," said Drainville. "How it is to be done is very much in question."

Drainville said his committee will be submitting its report to the Ontario government in February, in preparation for the next phase of constitutional negotiations which will begin when the federal committee presents its report.

Novices come from behind, tie Little Britain

On Sunday, November 24, our boy's travelled to Little Britain. The first period was not that exciting and by the end of the period the score was 3-0 for Little Britain.

By the time the second period got underway, our boys found out what could happen when they start playing as a team. Paul Danials started the second period off by scoring the next two goals, assisted by Josh Shaw, Ashley Pettes and Danny Neilson.

With lots of chances to score and tie the game in the second period, we just couldn't do it until minutes into the third period Josh Shaw tied the game, assisting him was Danny Neilson. Score ending up in a 3-3 tie. Job well done by all.

From October 12 to November 24, Novice's have played 11 games consisting of 6 wins, 4 losses and 1 tie.

This OMHA team consists of 2 goalies, Shane Walker, Mitch Johnston.

Player's are, Josh Shaw, Jarrett Rowden, Gary Kernohan, Trevor Cole, Trevor Woods, Gatin Davis, Rick Kinsmen, Danny Neilson, Paul Danials, Ashley Pettis. Coached by Barry

Shaw, Assistant Coaches, Wayne Johnston, Tim Woods. Manager Dough Kernohan.

On Friday, November 29, we are travelling to Woodville and on Saturday, November 30 we will be playing Fenelon Falls in Minden.

Watch for updates of these two games in next weeks issue.

Wife assault is a serious problem in riding

November 1991 marks Ontario's sixth annual Wife Assault Prevention Month. It's time to talk about spouse assault - and how to prevent it.

Abuse of women is an unfortunate part of our history. For instance, the often heard phrase "rule of thumb" comes from an 18th century British law that stated a husband could hit or discipline his wife "with a whip or rattan no wider than his own thumb". It's chilling to think how easily we use a phrase which refers to the crime of spouse abuse! Yet, in the last two hundred years, society has begun to acknowledge that this is not appropriate behavior. And it is a crime now. Under the law, harming or threatening a wife or girlfriend is just as illegal as harming or threatening a stranger. The law makes no distinction. Abuse is abuse.

Drainville Diary

A report from Queen's Park

With Dennis Drainville, MPP

According to a recent university survey, one in every five men living with a woman admits to using violence against her. In our constituency, the real life experiences of women attest to that, with tragic consequences. I am pleased to see that Victoria County will soon have its much needed women's shelter. 'Victoria's' is scheduled to open in the new year in Lindsay. I applaud and congratulate the Women's Resources Service and all the volunteers who worked long hard hours to bring about the shelter.

The Provincial government recognizes that having a safe place to go to is vitally important to assaulted women. As a result, last May this government announced $12 million in new funding for wife assault programs and services. Over $7 million of this increase is being devoted to support services for assaulted women and their children.

Overall, a record provincial commitment of $70 million this year will support and enhance initiatives involving public education and prevention programs, shelters and counselling services and law enforcement strategies.

Violence against women concerns all of society. The cycle must be broken to stop violent behavior being passed on to future generations. It's time to say no to abuse against women - physical, sexual, economic and emotional.

High school Talent Night delights the audience

The students at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School offered the community an early Christmas present Thursday evening. A troupe of actors, singers, musicians and comedians took to the stage in the school's annual talent night presentation.

The performance played to a full house and drew appreciative applause from the audience for the enthusiastic efforts.

Larissa Gray and Mathew Brydon served as Masters of Ceremonies for the evening, introducing each of the performances and providing a humorous break between each act.

The evening opened with a one act play called The Cleanest

Town in the West. A light and breezy farce, set in the wild west, the tableau portrayed a familiar cast of characters locked in a quest for truth, justice and the American way. Of course, the evil-doers are brought to justice, the maiden wins the hand of the brave sheriff and the community can continue to bask in its reputation as the cleanest towns in the west.

The cast included Jeanna Stutt, Laura Lancia, Sarah Levis, Julie Anne Adam, Patti Hughes, Anna Edwards, Ted O'Connell, Erin Lynch and Jeanette Wheeler.

Frank Wallace, a teacher at the school, then provided an musical interlude, accompanying himself on guitar as he sang the Cat Stevens standard "Moonshadow" and a song made famous by the Crash Test Dummies, "Superman Song".

Following the intermission, Lisa Ranson and Ted O'Connell sang a duet with the piano accompaniment of Julie Ann Adam. They performed the Richard Marx song "Right There Waiting for You".

Jenna Stutt then took the stage with a superb lip-synched interpretation of Michael Jackson's hit song "Beat It". The antics followed closely on the super star's video presentation and was an obvious hit with the many students in the audience.

Sarah Levis performed a delightful piano interpretation of Beethoven "Für Elise".

Back for another year at the HHSS talent night was stand-up comedian Chris Bradford. He kept the audience in stitches with his clever one-liners and entertaining sketches.

The grade ten band, under the direction of Tom Regina, then took to the stage with two selections, including the theme from the television show Green Acres and the hit song "Stand By Me".

A melodious quartet of saxophonists, which included Todd

Jackson, music teacher Tom Regina, Kim Smith and Andy Lewis entertained with a piece called "Saxafress".

The Stage band closed off the performances with two numbers "The Beat Goes On" and the Jerry Lee Lewis classic "Great Balls of Fire".

Before the audience could slip away, the back stage crew were introduced and thanked for their important contribution to the performance. Among those called upon to take a bow were: director Catya Hynard; producer Bec Whalen; co-producer Laura Jane Chumbley; stage manager Keith MacKenzie; assistant stage manager Kerry Brezina; lighting director Rebecca Gimmi; sound Chris Greenfield and Don Mawbey; hair and make-up Tricia Bain and Candice Kennedy; set Keith MacKenzie, Bec Whalen and Catya Hynard; properties Yvette Foster and Lynn Bussey; masters of the house Susie Forgrave and Laura Fideau; graphics Cameron Berry and Laura Jane Chumbley; advertising Kerry Brezina; tickets the Drama Club; refreshments Mrs. Jean Levis and the Drama Club.

Clockwise from top right: Teacher Frank Wallace performs two songs including Superman's Song; Dawn Moore one of the musicians in the Grade Ten Band; Members of the cast perform a one-act humorous play called The Cleanest Town in the West.

Wilde's Selfish Giant comes to home

Come and enjoy a very special Christmas programme when the Purple Dragon Puppet Troupe presents "Oscar's Magic Christmas".

Adapted from the story "The Selfish Giant" by Oscar Wilde, Purple Dragon Puppet Troupe has encompassed the Christmas theme into "Oscar's Magic Christmas".

This delightful programme is performed with a variety of hand and body puppets enhanced by colourful scenery and props.

The performance includes mime, dance, narration and extensive use of music and sound to create an environment of intimacy.

The Purple Dragon Puppet Theatre consists of four people combining their professional talents as musicians, teachers, woodworkers and visual artists.

Formed in Kingston seven years ago, this puppet theatre troupe has developed specific plays for the Suzuki Music School and the Hearing Society in which they made use of a sign language interpreter.

The Haliburton County

Public Library, Minden Branch and the Rotary Club of Minden invite you to share the excitement with them on Saturday, December 7, 1991 at 10:30 a.m. in the Auditorium of Hyland Crest Senior Citizens' Home.

Why not join us...and in any event, Season's Greetings from the Haliburton County Public Library.

YWCA child care program underway

The YWCA of Peterborough, Victoria and Haliburton's New Child Care Development Program is under way with the coordinator, Beth Brew, assisting in the development, implementation and maintenance of quality child care options for families throughout the three counties.

The Child Care Development Program is part of the YWCA's Outreach Program located in Lindsay at 2 Albert Street North, 2nd Floor.

This program is funded by the Ministry of Community and Social Services for two years.

The first priority of this program is to support community groups establishing child care services in newly constructed schools. This would involve assisting the groups in developing non-profit Boards of Directors or Parent Advisory Committees to operate the Centres. Another support would be to assist in the development of an operating budget or preparing for licensing.

A second priority will be to offer assistance to existing child care systems to conduct needs assessments, evaluate programs, prepare applications for funding proposals, budget preparation and to assist networking between other licensed child care programs. Support will also be offered to assist those involved with the Direct Operating Grant Program.

The third component will be to encourage and assist with the development of networking between various child care support programs such as Resources Centres and Child Care Forums.

For more information regarding the Child Care Development Project, please contact Beth Brew at (705) 878-1444.

Newsletter provides safety information

The Grand Re-opening of our Haliburton Resource Centre (and also the Head Office of C.H.A.C.E.) was a tremendous success!

Thanks so much to all the volunteers who helped make the day's events so exciting.

Thanks too, to the staff who, with all their enthusiasm and love for our service, worked together to create an atmosphere of welcome and excitement!

Thanks as well to Bill Davis and to Alice Dana, of Dennis Drainville's office, for their very kind words.

And a most special bouquet to all our families and caregivers and all our colleagues who made it a point to be part of our special day — almost 150 people came out to share in our excitement and see our new centre!

Thanks for letting us know that you're happy we're here and a part of this community.

In our last update we spoke of sharing some information on infant equipment safety.

As part of our service, both Minden and Haliburton C.H.A.C.E. offer rentals of infant equipment such as car seats, cribs, playpens, high chairs etc.

For a small deposit (which is returned when the equipment is returned in good condition), anyone in the community may rent such equipment by the week or month.

Naturally, it is very important to us that our equipment be in good repair and meet all current safety standards.

Consequently, C.H.A.C.E. subscribes to a quarterly news letter produced by the Infant and Toddler Safety Association entitled, Grow Safely.

This news letter is a terrific source of safety information on virtually any and all issues related to children.

Copies of this news letter are available for in-centre use at both our Resource Centres.

In the September 1991 issue of Grow Safely, a recall was issued on the Fisher-Price Infant Car Seat, Model #9149. This is the model with the blue canopy, manufactured between January 1, 1991 and February 27, 1991.

CHACE Update

by Sue Valm, Executive Director

During standard production crash tests, it was found that, "in certain types of severe crashes, the buckle can separate from the tongue leaving the infant unrestrained. This may cause a problem in secondary impacts."

A free replacement shield (with instructions) can be obtained by contacting Fisher-Price Canada, 5300 Token Road, Mississauga, Ontario, L4W 1P2.

They advise to continue using your existing restraint until the replacement arrives. This same issue goes into great detail about proper installation and use of infant and toddler car seats. Stop in and have a look!

We also said in our last update that we'd review information on how to choose quality day care for your children.

Our resource centres also have a wonderful range of resource books on parenting, discipline issues, pregnancy, nursing etc. including a nice selection on how to choose the best day care for your family's needs.

Some of these titles include, Working and Caring, by the much respected Dr. T. Berry Brazelton; Of Cradles and Careers, by Kaye Lowman; and The Parents with Careers Workbook, by Rebecca Sager Ashery and Michelle Margolin Basen.

Ashery and Basen's workbook is a well thought out and well laid out book with practical worksheets to work out such concerns as finding, evaluating and monitoring your child's care and improving home and time management.

It also deals sensitively with the guilt and stress which often accompanies a parent's decision to return to work.

The information given on the selection of a caregiver is very thorough and reminds us of our right to expect a level of care that we are comfortable with.

It empowers us to feel okay about discussing methods of discipline, the types of activities our children will be involved in, the amount of T.V. watched etc.

It is also respectful of the significance of the caregiver's role and her right to a fair salary etc.

If you are in need of child care, please take a minute to drop into either of our centres and review some of these books.

If you have a membership, you can borrow the books for a two week period. If you've not taken out a membership yet, you can always look over this material while your child(ren) are occupied with an activity in the centre.

You'll not regret having this additional information to help you make your choice.

Luckily, parents have opinions within our County in regards to day care choices. C.H.A.C.E. offers exciting and nurturing licensed day care in Minden for children aged 18 months to 5 years.

We also have a newly expanded school age program for children aged 6 to 12. We are conveniently located within walking distance of Archie Stouffer Public School, too!

C.H.A.C.E. oversees licensed Private Home Day Care as well. Perhaps family day care is more appealing to you or maybe you are considering becoming a licensed provider yourself. Just call our head office at 457-2989 and we can discuss your needs in more detail.

Other child care choices in our County include Wee Care in Haliburton, the Dorset Children's Centre and the many informal caregivers, some of whom list their services on the Child Care Listings board in both Minden and Haliburton C.H.A.C.E. Places.

Next month we'll feature some neat programming ideas to do with the kids!

Until then, look for our attractions in the Coming Events section of this paper and pop in when you're in town!

Insects are an integral part of our ecosystem

In spite of the unprecedented popular concern about the planet's environment, there has been little serious consideration by government or business of the destructive consequences of the relentless demand for steady economic growth.

One reason is the widespread belief that, through science, we have learned enough about the fundamental mechanisms that operate in the biosphere, the principles governing the productivity of ecosystems and the rules of substantial yields to minimize the impact of our activities and maintain our natural resources.

This faith in our knowledge is implicit in heated debates over the future of Atlantic cod, Phase II of the James Bay Hydro-electric Project, toxic pollution from pulp mills, nuclear power, global warming from human activity and clear-cut logging of oldgrowth forests.

But do we really know enough to assess the impact of human predation and industrial excreta and to confine them within the resilience and regenerative capacity of natural systems?

In all of these issues, we have to acknowledge that when it comes to natural resources, we can't "manage" our way out of a wet bag. That's because in spite of the impressive achievements of modern science, the scale of our ignorance about the natural world is vastly greater.

We construct policies on natural resources on a ludicrously skimpy and biased information base. Thus we prefer to study things that are large, so microscopic organisms such as soil fungi, marine plankton and even insects, are low on the scientific status pole.

We preferentially focus on factors perceived to be use-

Reflections

by David Suzuki

ful to people. Even the ease with which organisms can be studied may determine whether they are assessed.

No group of organisms suffers more from these biases than insects. They are stigmatized as "creepy-crawlies," not the glamorous study organisms as grizzly bears or whales, for example.

Most insects are maddeningly small and mobile so they're not easy to observe in their natural habitat. And they often occupy niches that are not easily accessible, like the canopy of forests.

Yet insects are key components in the planetary ecosphere. They are the most abundant, diverse and evolutionarily successful animals on the planet. The economic and medical impact of insects is trivial in comparison with their ecological significance.

Without insect pollinators the plant world would be totally different. Without insects, whole groups of fish, frogs, mammals and birds would disappear. Yet when Terry Erwin of the Smithsonian Institute blew a fog of pesticide into a small patch of Amazon rainforest canopy in Peru, he found that virtually every species of insect that showered down had never been seen by a human being before!

Erwin used his results to calculate there may be 30 million species on earth. To date, biologists have identified a mere 1.7 million of them!

But of those we've named, details of habitat, range, life-cycle and reproductive capacity are known for only a handful.

Canadian foresters argue that our forests lack the species diversity of their tropical counterparts so far more of the components are known. Yet the research platform recently built in a Sitka spruce tree in B.C.'s Carmanah Valley by the Western Canadian Wilderness Committee was the world's first in a temperate rainforest. Already it is proving to be a research bonanza.

University of Victoria grad student, Neville Winchester, and his supervisor, Richard Ring, report that several new species and genera are among their collections from the platform. Indeed, they estimate that a mere 30 percent of arthropods (insects, spiders, crustaceans, millipedes and centipedes) in the area have been collected.

Winchester observes that many canopy insect species are flightless and sedentary, confined to highly specific habitats in oldgrowth trees.

Clear-cut logging radically changes the landscape, thereby massively altering the flora and fauna, often eliminating many of the canopy-specific species: "the removal of this habitat will cause a decrease in biological diversity and initiate extinctions."

His studies record "a unique fauna that is the product of long-term stability and is now habitat-restricted" and that clear-cutting of coastal oldgrowth "will reduce biodiversity and cause the permanent loss of these unique communities."

We ought to be putting our effort into determining the extent and importance of this diversity, not destroying it before we've even found it.

Residents make Christmas crafts

Saturday is usually quiet except friends and relatives often drop in when they come to town to shop.

Sunday some residents go out to church or are taken out. In the evening, Rev. John Burgess conducted chapel service and Alice Jones played the organ. We appreciate their faithfulness and thank them greatly.

Monday, being Remembrance Day, many of the staff were off, but in the afternoon Marjorie Rennick came for a hymn sing which we enjoyed very much and the residents thank you very much.

As we didn't receive the movies we saw the video of the 25th Anniversary Celebrations in the auditorium instead.

Tuesday morning Louise Leonard took the chapel service and communion service. We thank her very much.

In the afternoon, as Doris Robertson was on vacation,

Senior League

by Winnifred Barnum

Terry Barnum drove the bus so some residents could have a trip.

After getting every one on the bus, we went down Deep Bay Road to Moore Falls and #35 Hwy. to Mr. D's Donuts for donuts and coffee and sincerely thank the staff who gave us so much help unloading and loading their bus.

Thank you Terry for driving the bus and Linda Fry, Janke Thomas and Gregg Sawyer for taking such good care of us.

Wednesday we did decorations for Christmas in the craft room and the ladies who quilt finished a quilt they were working on. In the evening Dianna Morris came to read to us. She came Friday evening also. Thank you Dianna.

At seven o'clock we had Kathy Owens in to play the piano and accordion and sing. Earl was hunting so didn't come, but we surely enjoyed Kathy and we thank her.

Our usual tea party was held Thursday. Georgina Deeks, Corienne Arsenault, Laurie Ann Roodenburgh and Meegan, Ann Baker, Molly McKenzie and Dorothy Graham provided the delicious tea and served us so nicely. These ladies were from Minden Legion and we thank them very much.

Bingo was held in the evening, called by Sheila Carrell and her mother Barbara Elder whom we thank immensely.

This week we have had two birthday ladies Ellen Bastien November 13, 1991 and Gladys Whyte November 15, 1991. Many happy returns to you both.

We are sorry to say Gertie McKay and Violet Thornett are still patients in hospital.

Friday was Happy Hour again and the Country Scottish Dancers delighted the residents and friends with their dancing and Jack Mavors singing. The volunteers were Don Holden, Mary Guillemain, Janke Thomas. We sincerely thank you all.

There will be public information sessions held in the auditorium of Hyland Crest on McPherson Street in Minden regarding the Direction of Long Term Care and Support services in Ontario. This will be from 2-4 p.m. and 7-9 p.m.

There's a place set apart, In the depths of our hearts, A corner that is always your own, No once can replace it, Nor can time erase it, We keep it for you alone, So please God when we're lonely, And wonder why he's gone, Forgive us for the tears we shed, And help us carry on, We had a brother we were proud to own, How much we miss him will never be known, The heart aches in the world are many, To lose our brother was the greatest of any. Precious years we shared together will be remembered now and forever. Sadly missed and always remembered by sister Lynda, Bill, Preston and Ruby-Anne.
